

Do you dread going to the dentist?

Do you avoid needed procedures for fear or anxiety reasons?

You are not alone.

The American Dental Society (ADA) reported that fully 70% of people with dental insurance neglect to see the dentist because of fear.

Wouldn't you prefer to rest comfortably through your procedure under the care and expertise of a board certified anesthesiologist?

Tyler Sedation can help you.

We are a group of Board Certified Anesthesiologists who will guide you through your dental or other office procedure with the safety and attention you would expect from a hospital setting.

WHO WE ARE:

Tyler Sedation is a division of East Texas Anesthesiology Associates (ETAA).

We are a multi specialty anesthesiology group with board certified physicians specializing in virtually all areas of Anesthesiology, including cardiovascular, pediatric and neuroanesthesia. We have over 13 years of experience performing anesthesia as an organized group in operating rooms in Tyler TX. By using very similar anesthetics and state-of-the-art monitoring in your physician and dentist office we make it possible for children and adults alike to have even the most extensive procedures performed in total comfort.

Safety is the top priority in our practice . We are there to deliver the entire anesthetic from start to finish. While you are under our care we monitor the EKG (heart), blood pressure, oxygen saturation, breathing parameters and control exactly the amount of anesthetic delivered.

We are available for virtually any in-office procedure you or your family may undergo. We currently have agreements with both pediatric/adult dentists. Whether you need cosmetic or complete restorative work ETAA/Tyler Sedation can help you and your family. We can coordinate your sedation at virtually any office in Tyler.

Should you desire a board certified anesthesiologist to administer your sedation, please call us or have your dentist/physician contact us to check availability.

QUESTIONS:

How does sedation with ETAA differ from what may already be available from my physician/dentist?

Traditional office based sedation often consists of "dose and go" sedation. In this model, you are prescribed a single pill, often a mild sedative, to be taken just before or just as you arrive at the physician/dentist's office. This single dose approach, while effective for some, is really the only chance you get to obtain an adequate level of sedation. This can sometimes lead to a period of heavy over sedation, that can be undesirable as well.

Sometimes office based sedation can involve some form of assistant to provide the sedation during your procedure. Often, this can be a variation on the "dose and go" model or it can involve starting an intravenous (IV) line and administering potent sedative drugs. In this technique, your additional sedation, if any, is provided by a nurse (or some assistant), who may have additional duties during your procedure that may include assisting your dentist/physician thus taking their focus away from you. Our board certified physicians administer your sedation in a controlled IV form. Our ONLY duty is your safety and comfort. This allows us to adjust your level of sedation while monitoring all your body's responses, therefore ensuring a safe and comfortable experience. This is far superior to the "dose and go" approach that may leave you under sedated and still anxious or the sedation nurse approach where their other duties prevent undivided attention to your care.
